About DSWeb

DSWeb provides up-to-date information on dynamical systems and its applications. It promotes the discipline of dynamical systems and fosters communication among all those interested in the field. Please enjoy what you find and contribute to making DSWeb even better!

The DSWeb Portal Editor-in-Chief is Lennear van Veen, University of Ontario Institute of Technology, Canada.

DSWeb is a community service of SIAM, developed with support from the National Science Foundation.

Edelspam

This week we celebrate the 33rd birthday of spam. According to leaders in the industry virus protection and email filtering, over 90% of email traffic is taken up by spam these days. Over 99% of this 90% is no more than annoying, but there is a small portion that targets us, applied mathematicians...

The editors of DSWeb are happy to welcome Anne Cattla on board. She will be the Teaching Material Editor. Among other things, she will be working on new content of the Tutorials section together with Eric Shea-Brown and Evelyn Sander.

We have also opened a new section for letters from you, our readers. We hope this will be a place for feedback and discussion. The other new section we created is the editorial, which is the place for us to comment and discuss.
